

AC21 International Graduate School 2017

“Community and Indigenous-based Technology for Sustainable Development Towards Resilient Society”

International Graduate School (IGS) is a regular program of the AC21 consortium held annually in different countries. The 2017 program (AC21 IGS 2017) will be held at Universitas Gadjah Mada in Yogyakarta, Indonesia. By participating in AC21 IGS 2017, students from all over the world will experience the five learning components in this program: Lectures, Workshop, Community Service, Short Internship and Excursion. It will be a good opportunity for students to understand more about indigenous-based technology in local industries and to learn local wisdom through cultural visit. Trans-disciplinary AC21 IGS 2017 will enable students to explore all aspects of community and indigenous-based technology such as sustainable agriculture, health products, and community resilience.
